NEWS FROM TOWER HAMLETS COUNCIL AND YOUR COMMUNITY

75 knives seized in two police sweeps

BY STAFF REPORTER

SEVENTY-FIVE knives were taken off the borough's streets last week in two police operations.

On Tuesday, October 20, officers from the Tower Hamlets gangs unit led a team onto the Aberfeldy and Teviot estates in Poplar, after receiving information that knives were being sold illegally from a car.

With support from the East India and Lansbury Safer Neighbourhoods Teams, Poplar HARCA housing association and council enforcement officers (THEOS), the unit stopped a vehicle in Zetland Street at about 1.20pm, seized 70 knives and questioned the 36-year-old driver.

Detective Sergeant Gemma Jones said: "This is a great result for police and our partners. With the help of the community we have taken 70 knives, which may have been used in crimes in future, off the streets.

"We would continue to ask the public to tell us of anything that would help reduce the incidence of knives on the streets of Tower Hamlets."

On Thursday, October 29, a weapons sweep was made at Rounton Park, Bow, and nearby estates as part of a city-wide campaign.

Titled Operation Sceptre, it aimed to take knives out of the hands of young people and to tackle gangs who carry knives.

Using intelligence, which suggested that gang members have been 'laying down' weapons in and around the area, hiding them for future use, the team carried out the weapon sweep with dogs and horses.

Five knives were found in the park, which also has a children's play area.

Mayor John Biggs said: "To recover such a large haul of weapons is a great result and helps keep our streets safe from serious crime."

"The council will continue to support the police as much as we can."

FLYING THE FLAG FOR VICKY

AFTER being crowned the nation's favourite park last week, Victoria Park celebrated in style with a community event. Green Flag Award manager, Paul Todd, and Anthea Thomas from Keep Britain Tidy unveiled a plaque on the day and there was a coconut shy and inflatables for kids to enjoy. Adam, 3, and his mum are pictured at the event.

The community stalwart started 31 years ago as a cleaner at the Isle of Dogs community centre and has gradually risen through the ranks to become CEO of Dockland Settlements, gaining an OBE along the way.

Shahagir Bakth Faruk (also pictured above) has clocked up more than four decades of voluntary service with organisations including Suprabash, People like Us, Shahnan Employment, and the British Bangladesh Chambers of Commerce.

Other Community Champions Award winners were Mohammed Derek Cox, Golam Mostafa, Elaine Sadler, Abdul Aziz Sardar, Jean Thomas, Baroness Pola Uddin and Sally Yoxall.

Each was presented with a framed certificate signed by Sir George Iacobescu, CWG

CHILDREN at Old Church nursery and pre-school in Stepney joined a campaign to raise money for breast cancer charities by wearing pink. Staff at the nursery also held a fundraising cake sale. Head teacher Sarah Helm said she had been completely taken aback by the generosity of the children and their parents, including a girl who donated £20 of her pocket money and her mother who collected £140 from work colleagues. "Although they are very young, the children understand that the money will go to help people who are ill," she said.

Lotto cash for communities

BY JESSICA ODUBAYO

SIX Tower Hamlets organisations are among community projects across London, that have received cash to help improve their communities.

The grants have been made through the Big Lottery Fund's Awards for All and Reaching Communities programmes, which provides between £300 and £10,000 to voluntary and community organisations; and larger grants of £10,000 and above for more long-term projects.

Recipients in Tower Hamlets include the Apples & Pears Foundation. It will use its £10,000 funding for its schools programme to provide extracurricular activities, including rock climbing, canoeing and excursions for children, young people and their families from disadvantaged backgrounds.

Arnhem Wharf Primary School on the Isle of Dogs will spend £8,160 on a range of after-school clubs to improve access to leisure activities, helping youngsters develop their social skills, confidence and ability to work as part of a team.

St Anne's Catholic Primary School will use its £9,436 funding to run an extra-curricular yoga club to reduce everyday stress and enable children to participate in activities that are not competitive. The project will also encourage parents to engage with the school.

St Saviour's Church Of England Primary School, in Chrisp Street, will use its £10,000 grant to create a garden and vegetable growing area. This will give the community a safe and accessible facility, allowing healthy outdoor activities.

Shadwell Community Project has received £8,600 to spend on recreational activities including refurbishing its playground.

Wapping's Noorani Masjid and Cultural Centre will use £10,000 to recruit volunteer community mentors, who will support people experiencing the effects of poor social integration and unemployment.

Lyn Cole, Big Lottery Fund England grant-making director, said: "Whether it is supporting people who are struggling to cope with bereavement or people with mental health issues to gain more confidence, these projects will make a huge difference to the lives of many."

"They are excellent examples of people working together to help others in their community, including supporting them to attain the skills they need to realise their potential."

Last chance to have say on budget plans

BY SUSAN MULLIGAN

The council is reminding residents that they have until November 9 to respond to its savings proposals.

Ongoing cuts to local government funding mean that the council is forecast to find around £60 million savings over the next three years.

All local authorities have a duty to set a balanced budget.

The council has developed a package of savings proposals for public consideration.

These include:

■ increasing the number of services that are accessed online;

- charging those who can afford to pay more for certain services;
- improving the value and outcomes from council contracts;
- reducing the level of grants and bursaries (so that they are similar to other local authorities);
- improving the way in which services are managed.

Mayor of Tower Hamlets, John Biggs, said: "I am committed to improving public services, to protecting the vulnerable from wider austerity measures and to delivering a budget setting process that is open, transparent and fit for purpose.

"Throughout the process of identifying possible savings, I have asked for frontline services, which our communities depend on, to be protected.

"We want to begin a conversation with local communities about this year's budget, and continue it over the coming months as we develop a three-year Medium Term Strategy."

When the consultation closes, analysis of the feedback will be used to consider which of the savings proposals should be agreed at the council's cabinet meeting in January 2016.

Council welcomes 'vote of confidence'

THE council has welcomed the announcement made by the Department for Communities and Local Government that more powers will be returned to its control.

Government-appointed Commissioners were sent in last December to oversee specific council functions, including grants and procurement.

The council has worked hard to alleviate the government's concerns.

Its recent six-month update on performance found that 91 per cent of the items identified have been completed, or are due to be completed, in line with the targets set.

Mayor John Biggs said: "I welcome this vote of confidence. With a new management team in place we are putting the past behind us.

"The day-to-day work of the council is not particularly about politics, but about providing excellent services and that's what we will do.

"Our community needs it and our staff want to deliver it too.

"We need to work hard to support a stronger and more united community. Tower Hamlets is the most exciting place in London."

While the Commissioners will remain part of the council, this marks a turning point in establishing healthy governance and rebuilding public trust.

The borough's buzzing!

THE nights might be drawing in and the clocks might have gone back, but there is still a lot to celebrate.

After Roman Road was shortlisted to be Britain's best high street, Victoria Park has kept its crown as the nation's favourite park.

And the free fireworks spectacular is returning there on Saturday, November 7. It's set to be a great night for all the family with a fantastic display put on by our arts, parks and events teams.

And in the opposite corner of the borough, I was honoured to raise a flag in Altab Ali Park last week, to celebrate it being awarded the prestigious Green Flag status for the first time.

I am committed to protecting our parks, and trying to provide more green space alongside our massive amounts of development.

The park is named after Altab Ali, a young man whose murder mobilised a mass movement against racism in the borough. A dramatisation of his story features on the opening night of the Season of Bangla Drama which returns this November for its 13th year.

There's something for everyone. You can discover more about the richness of Bengali arts and culture, something not a lot of people, even many younger Bengalis, know about.

November 11 is Remembrance Day, a day when we honour all those who have laid down their lives in service to this country. There will be services across the borough on Sunday, November 8 for residents to pay their respects.

TOWER HAMLETS

In the mayor's office I spend most of my time working at serious stuff but we need this to be a borough where there is plenty to relax to. With all that goes on – whether in the community, at the Wharf and City Fringe, or at places in between – this remains the most exciting place to be in London.

Finally, two serious matters. First, I am incredibly disappointed that London Metropolitan University is moving to Holloway, and particularly the Cass School of Art, Architecture and Design, which is a national centre of excellence. We need it to stay! It looks like they've made their minds up but we must try to reverse this bad decision.

And second, I'd like to thank every reader who's responded to the ongoing budget consultation. There are serious and difficult decisions to be made and we want to ensure that your views inform us every step of the way.

You can blame me whatever we decide, but you can blame yourself a little bit too if you don't get involved!

Heritage grant ensures church has a future

BY JESSICA ODUBAYO

URGENT repairs are set to begin at St Paul's Church, Bow Common, after it received £223,400 from the Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF).

Work will be done to stabilise the inside of the church's soaring lantern roof.

The wavy concrete aisle roofs, along with the building's rainwater drainage system, will also be repaired, making the building watertight once more.

The church, built in 1958-60 by Maguire and Murray, was the first in the UK to be designed around a central altar.

In 2013, St Paul's won the National Churches Trust Diamond Jubilee Award for the best church built since 1953.

The porch lettering is by Ralph Beyer, designer of the lettering work for Coventry Cathedral. The 800 sq ft Murano glass mosaic mural by Charles Lutyens stretching around the interior is the largest in the UK by a single artist.

Rev Bernadette Hegarty, vicar of St Paul's, said: "We're delighted that the Heritage Lottery Fund has given us this support.

"St Paul's has a significant heritage and serves the people of Bow Common as a place of worship and engagement, as well as attracting visitors from across the world on account of its architectural heritage.

"The grant will enable us to ensure that the building is preserved for future generations of worshippers and visitors."

The grant will also help deliver a range of activities designed to engage people more fully with the heritage of the church, including a heritage leaflet, a heritage section on the website and a number of events.

Barts appoints chief executive

News from Barts Health Trust

WE are delighted to have appointed Alwen Williams CBE as the chief executive of Barts Health NHS Trust.

Alwen joined Barts Health as interim chief executive on June 1. She has been a manager in the NHS since 1980 and has 12 years' experience of being an NHS chief executive.

The appointment follows an open and competitive selection process, which included independent external assessment.

Commenting on the appointment, chair John Bacon said: "I am personally delighted and would like to congratulate Alwen and wish her every success in the role.

"The trust faces significant challenges in the period ahead, but I am confident that, under Alwen's leadership and with the support of the board, we will make the improvements necessary to deliver consistently safe and compassionate care."

Ms Williams said: "The immense scale of what staff at Barts Health do on a day-to-day basis is truly inspiring and I have been so proud to see some truly excellent care being provided since joining the trust as interim chief executive in June.

"We know that we have improvements to make – our patients deserve safe and compassionate care every single time they come to one of our hospitals or services.

"From meeting many dedicated and committed colleagues in wards and departments over the last few months, it is clear to me that we are determined to make the improvements and we have the skill and capability to do so."

Baroness tours birth facilities

MOTHERS and health workers at the Barkantine Birth Centre had the opportunity to comment on the care provided when Baroness Cumberlege visited the Isle of Dogs clinic on September 21.

Alwen Williams

The centre, run by Barts Health NHS Trust, is one of many renowned midwifery-led services being visited by the baroness as she tours the country listening to the views and recommendations of mothers and staff for the future care of pregnant women.

Research shows that women who give birth in specialist midwife-led centres have a greater chance of a natural birth without the need for specialist interventions. In general, they have a better birth experience as well as improved support to breastfeed.

Since it opened in December 2007, more than 3,000 babies have been born at the centre. The midwives also offer antenatal and post-birth checks, active birth classes and breastfeeding support. The centre is fully equipped, complete with birthing pools for water births and double beds for partners who want to stay overnight.

Alison Herron, head of midwifery, said: "We were delighted to host the baroness. Each year more women choose the centre because of how we can help them to have the type of birth they want. We hope that local women will continue to take advantage of the range of state-of-the-art facilities that we offer to have a safe, natural and positive birthing experience."

Women can use the centre as long as they are in good health and have had an uncomplicated pregnancy.

Rogue trader dumped waste all over London

Serial fly-tipper convinced local businesses he was licensed waste broker

BY STEFAN SWIFT

A ROGUE trader has been hit with a £10,000 bill and ordered to do 100 hours of unpaid work after illegally dumping waste across east London.

Neil Phillips, of Massingham Street, Mile End, was fined and sentenced to a 12-month community order after admitting multiple offences relating to abandoned containers of waste.

The council's commercial waste enforcement team worked with the Environment Agency to secure the conviction.

Ten businesses provided evidence that they had entered into waste removal contracts with Phillips, who operated under various company names, including C&L Recycling.

But rather than disposing of the waste correctly, Phillips dumped trailers containing refuse sacks of rotting food matter and cardboard on the streets of several London boroughs.

Phillips also unlawfully used a waste carrier's certificate belonging to someone else.

He pleaded guilty at Hammersmith Magistrates' Court on October 22 to seven offences of storing waste without an exemption or an environmental permit.

He also admitted one offence of acting as a broker or dealer in controlled waste without being registered.

Phillips was fined £200 for failing to register with the Environment Agency as a waste contractor, and ordered to pay costs of £10,168, a victim surcharge of £60, and a court charge of £150.

Mayor of Tower Hamlets, John Biggs, welcomed the conviction. He said: "The dumping of waste is a real problem across the borough and it is great that our work with the Environment Agency has led to this."

Cllr Ayas Miah, cabinet member for environment, added: "Fly-tipping by businesses and residents is illegal and we encourage anyone who suspects it is taking place to report it."

"You can do this through our free FiFiLi app, by calling Streetline on 7364 5004 or via the council website."

London's love affair with shellfish

Costermongers nicknamed the long row of oyster boats, moored close along the wharf, 'Oyster Street' from where carts hauled oysters up into the East End.

History

Championing the humble oyster

BY JOHN RENNIE

Above:
Oyster Street,
Billingsgate
as depicted in an illustration of the period

EVERYBODY knows about East End food. Fish and chips of course; pie and mash definitely (though a curry is a much more likely Cockney meal these days). And shellfish.

Tubby Isaac's stall on the corner of Petticoat Lane was, until a couple of years ago, the most obvious symbol of the East End love affair with crustacea, and a sad loss after nearly a century serving up cockles, mussels and prawns.

But oysters? The food of the moneyed classes not the hoi polloi, surely? Oysters though, made their move upmarket only relatively recently, when over-fishing drove supplies down and prices up. For 2,000 years, from the days of Londinium itself, the oyster had been the food of the common man.

Actually, until the Romans arrived in 43AD and founded the city that became London, Britons had been fairly indifferent to shellfish. They were a useful subsistence food, a fallback when meat or fish were hard to come by and good for animal feed, but nothing more. But the Romans brought with them a love of eating seafood of all kinds. Once the military invasion was over and traders and civilians began to settle, a demand swiftly built up for all kinds of shellfish.

Hence archaeological digs of Roman sites in the capital have revealed piles of shells of mussels, whelks, cockles and limpets... exactly the items you would have found piled high on the stall of the late lamented (Messrs) Isaac. But London's particular glory was the oyster.

With the departure of the Romans, the oyster lost its status as a delicacy and disappeared from London tables for centuries, but by the early 8th century they were back in fashion, though throughout the Middle Ages there were strict rules about not mixing meat and fish (backed up by some rather suspect medieval medical beliefs about the combination being injurious to one's health). But by the 17th century, the old religious rules about never mixing the two had broken down and cooks were beginning to cook oysters with duck or capon, or stuffing them within turkeys.

And they were no rich man's food. On the streets of Whitechapel, Shoreditch, Spitalfields and Aldgate, alongside the piemen and other street vendors, would be costermongers selling oysters, sometimes raw (as they are generally eaten today), often cooked, and often pickled (which preserved them for the long journey into the heart of England). That wasn't an issue for the East End of course, whose citizens were dining on oysters freshly harvested from the beds of the Crouch and Roach rivers in Essex, from around that county's Mersea Island, and even from the Thames itself.

By the 19th century, oysters were decidedly the food of the poor. The eponymous Mr Pickwick encounters Sam Weller working in the White Hart Inn in The Borough, in Charles Dickens' Pickwick Papers. Weller remarks, knowingly: "Poverty and oysters always seem to go together."

By the middle of the 19th century, oysters and scallops were being dredged in huge numbers all along the Sussex coast by fleets of oyster smacks. The haul would come in to Billingsgate Market (these days on the Isle of Dogs but then, of course, in Lower Thames Street, in the City).

Henry Mayhew, that great chronicler of Victorian London described the oyster trade as being one of the oldest in the capital. "The costermongers have nicknamed the long row of oyster boats moored close along the wharf 'Oyster Street'... Each boat has its black signboard and salesman in his white apron walking up and down 'his shop'."

From there, carts hauled oysters up into the East End. While every street corner would have a seller hawking shellfish, the pubs even put oysters on the counter as free bar snacks... salted and laced with vinegar they would do the same job as peanuts and crisps today, drying out the palate and encouraging the punters to down more beer.

Mayhew, being Mayhew, has an extraordinary conglomeration of facts about the Londoner's consumption of the oyster. He worked out that costermongers were selling 124 million oysters on London's streets each year. At four for a penny, this was realising a revenue of £129,650.

And such was the ubiquity of the oyster that by the mid-1800s, East End urchins had even invented something called Grotto Day – a kind of piscine 'penny for the guy'. At the beginning of August, the harvest of oysters was at its height, and Cockney lads and lasses would gather the discarded shells and build a grotto of them on a street corner. As adults passed they would be implored to 'please to remember the grotto' (cough up a halfpenny in other words). Begging certainly, but enterprising begging.

The East End was really born in the 1800s of course. In 1801, London's population stood at 865,000; by 1871 it was over 3 million, and vast numbers piled into the slums that now covered the once green fields of Middlesex, east of Aldgate. The Dictionary of Victorian London estimates that there were now more than 6,000 street food vendors working in the city, serving up pea soup, pies, hot eels, pickled whelks, chestnuts... and oysters.

But as quickly as it had become the poor man's staple, the oyster all but disappeared. The industrial fishing of the beds of Sussex and Essex quickly saw them exhausted. The poor oysters simply couldn't breed fast enough to satisfy the East End's insatiable hunger for ostrea edulis. Prices went up, and the oyster appeared only in the posh restaurants of the West End.

As for pickled oysters – that old East End staple – you'd struggle to find them anywhere. Sam Weller and Charles Dickens would be astonished to find the once humble oyster now exclusively the preserve of the well-off.

Tales from the crypt

A shocking encounter with the reality of life on the streets, 50 years ago, led to the creation of a homelessness charity based in a church crypt that is still going strong today.

Jessica Odubayo reports.

ONE night in early 1965, Dennis Downham, rector of Christ Church Spitalfields, found a homeless man who had passed away on the church steps. Shaken to the core by the discovery, the rector opened up the church crypt as a shelter for homeless, alcoholic men in November that year.

It marked the start of the Spitalfields Crypt Trust (SCT) charity.

That was back when Spitalfields Market was a big fruit and vegetable market and the surrounding streets were largely derelict.

In the years since, the area has been transformed

“Two things remain the same... We care deeply about the people we work with... we are in for the long haul.”

Graham Marshall, trust chief executive out of all recognition. But the trust has kept up with the pace of change and remains as relevant now as ever, providing practical help, support and training to people who have been homeless and suffering from addiction.

Graham Marshall, trust chief executive, said: “Fifty years ago SCT provided one of the first residential rehabs in the UK for homeless alcoholic men.

“Today, we are almost unrecognisable as we now run a regular drop-in service for homeless people; a 16-bed residential recovery accommodation for alcoholics and drug addicts; four supported houses hosting 29 beds for those ready to integrate back into wider society; a training and personal development centre now teaching over 80 students per term; two social enterprises; relapse prevention groups and counselling services; and seven charity shops.”

There is a drop-in service providing food and drink, toiletries, clothes, advice, health checks and even a film club.

A personal development and training centre and a number of social enterprises including a furniture restoration project, gardening scheme and café also provide work experience and training.

Mr Marshall says that despite decades of evolution and change, the trust retains its original ethos.

“Two things remain the same,” he said. “We care deeply about the people we work with and want the best for them. Secondly, we are in for the long haul. We are not involved in short bursts before moving on to the next person.”

“Recovery takes time, involving healing, change and maturity in the inner person. That is where long-term and permanent change has to happen.”

Sponsored sleep-in will raise vital extra funds

IN its 50th anniversary year, the trust has hosted scores of activities to raise money to fund its ongoing work.

Events have included 'flip flop Friday', where participants paid to wear flip flops or sandals to work and support the homeless; a gig in Brick Lane, a walk and run taking in the trust's charity shops; and a summer garden party to launch the charity's orchard and wild flower garden.

On Friday, November 6, the trust will hold what is probably its most ambitious fundraising event yet – a sponsored sleep-in at Christ Church Spitalfields – in the very crypt where the charity was founded.

The event aims to help meet the charity's target of raising an extra £50,000 this year.

More than 150 singers from seven corporate, community and professional choirs will perform a cappella at Spitalfields Market from 6pm. And at 7pm, the choirs will lead a procession towards Christ Church Spitalfields to help open the sleep-in.

For part of the night, guests including a royal visitor, speaker of the council Cllr Abdul Mukit MBE, and Rev Andy Rider, rector of Christ Church Spitalfields, will visit the crypt and speak to those taking part in the sleep-in.

Then those spending the night will bag their spots, dine on soup, listen to stories and watch films.

Storytellers include Alan Gilbey, author of East End Back Passages, Stefan Dickens from the Bishopsgate Institute, Toni Davey, writer/performer and community activist and former SCT crypt residents.

Steve Stride, whose dad was a vicar at Christ Church and later became chair of the trust committee, will be among the sleepers and will be sharing memories of the area. Steve was 12 years old when he became a volunteer in the crypt in 1970.

"The whole thing was an incredible experience that had a profound influence on me," he said.

"Sometimes I can't quite believe how much Spitalfields has changed."

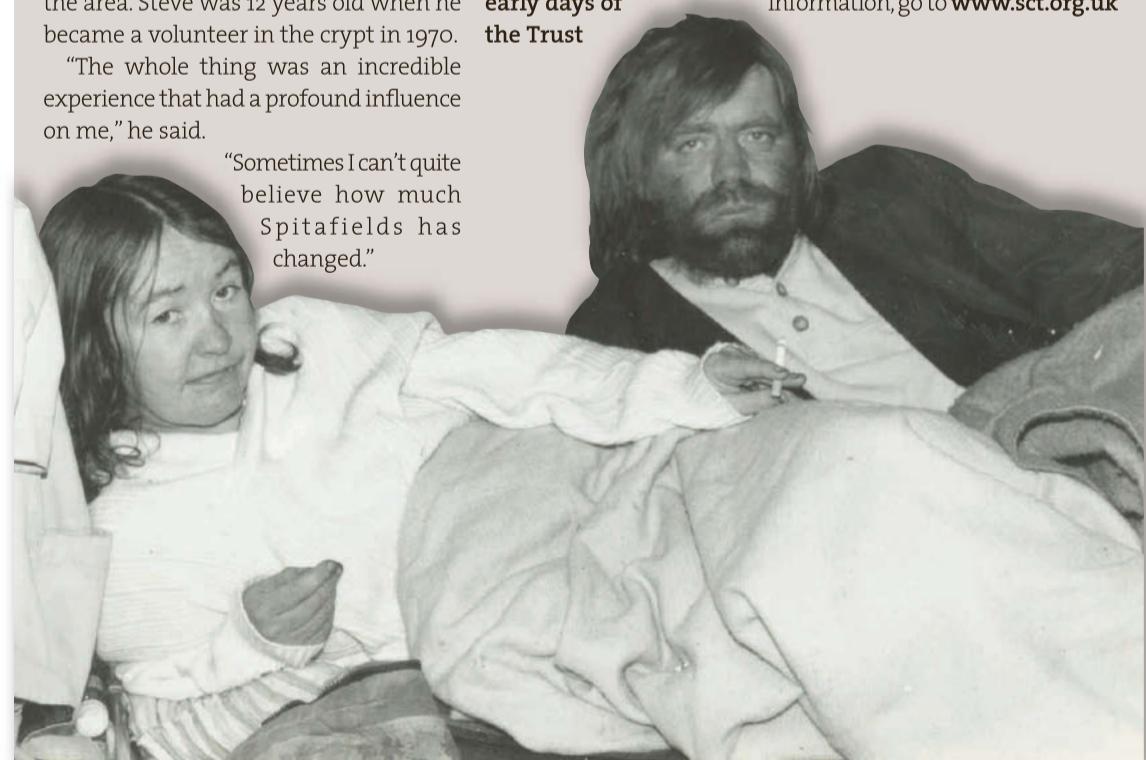

Actress Barbara Windsor flew the flag for SCT at their Charity Shop Strut event earlier this year

"The people who came to our crypt in the 1970s were vulnerable and sometimes difficult but they were also warm and eager to share their background and stories," he commented.

Lights will go out at midnight. And the next morning at 10.30am on Saturday November 7, Bishop of Stepney, Adrian Newman, will lead a celebratory service of thanksgiving for 50 years of the trust and marking the newly finished redevelopment of the crypt at Christ Church Spitalfields.

Chief executive Graham Marshall said: "Fifty years ago, the trust opened one of the first shelters in the UK for homeless alcoholic men. Sadly today, there still remains a persistent need to help people through periods of addiction and homelessness, which are rapidly increasing again."

The sleep-in has capacity for 50 participants who are required to raise £300. To support the event or for further information, go to www.sct.org.uk

PRELIMINARY NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MAKE GENERAL VESTING DECLARATION

STATEMENT OF EFFECT OF PARTS II AND III OF THE COMPULSORY PURCHASE (VESTING DECLARATIONS) ACT 1981

THE LONDON BOROUGH OF TOWER HAMLETS (BLACKWALL REACH) COMPULSORY PURCHASE ORDER 2013

PART 1

Power to make general vesting declaration

1. The London Borough of Tower Hamlets (hereinafter called "the Council") may acquire any of the land described in the Schedule above (excluding 168 and 201 Robin Hood Gardens) by making a general vesting declaration under section 4 of the Compulsory Purchase (Vesting Declarations) Act 1981. This has the effect, subject to paragraph 4 below, of vesting the land in the Council at the end of the period mentioned in paragraph 2 below. A declaration may not be made before the end of a period of two months from the first publication of a notice which includes this statement except with the consent in writing of every occupier of the land affected.

Notices concerning general vesting declaration

2. As soon as may be after the Council make a general vesting declaration, they must serve notice of it on every occupier of any of the land specified in the declaration (except land where there is one of the tenancies described in paragraph 3) and on every person who gives them information relating to the land in pursuance of the invitation contained in any notice. When the service of notices of the general vesting declaration is completed, a further period begins to run. This period, which must not be less than 28 days, will be specified in the declaration. On the first day after the end of this period ("the vesting date") the land described in the declaration will, subject to what is said in paragraph 4, vest in the Council together with the right to enter on the land and take possession of it. Every person on whom the Council could have served a notice to treat in respect of his interest in the land (other than a tenant under one of the tenancies described in paragraph 3) will be entitled to claim compensation for the acquisition of his interest in the land, with interest on the compensation from the vesting date.

Modifications with respect to certain tenancies

3. In the case of certain tenancies, the position stated above is subject to modifications. The modifications apply where the tenancy is either a "minor tenancy" i.e. a tenancy for a year or a yearly tenancy or a lesser interest, or "a long tenancy which is about to expire". The latter expression means a tenancy granted for an interest greater than a minor tenancy but having on the vesting date a period still to run which is not more than the period specified in the declaration for this purpose (which must not be more than a year). In calculating how long a tenancy has still to run, where an option to renew or to terminate it is available to either party, it shall be assumed that the landlord will take every opportunity open to him to terminate the tenancy while the tenant will use every opportunity to retain or renew his interest.
4. The modifications are that the Council may not exercise the right of entry referred to in paragraph 2 in respect of land subject to a tenancy described in paragraph 3 unless they first serve a notice to treat in respect of the tenancy and then serve every occupier of the land with a notice of their intention to enter and take possession after the period (not less than 14 days from the service of the notice) specified in the notice. The right of entry will be exercisable at the end of that period. The vesting of the land will be subject to the tenancy until the end of that period or until the tenancy comes to an end, whichever happens first.

Signed: Melanie Clay, Director of Law Probity & Governance and Monitoring Officer on behalf of the London Borough of Tower Hamlets

Dated: 26 October 2015

Repton's girls fight their way to the top

BY PETER FAULKNER

REPTON Boxing Club's female fighters are on the hunt for more titles.

Last year Lisa Moore and Jay Dujon sparked a revival in women's boxing in east London by winning gold medals at the Haringey Cup.

And as East End Life went to press both were going for glory again.

Moore and Dujon, along with Niki Paksi and Elena Katerina, were due to fight in the finals of the Novice Championships.

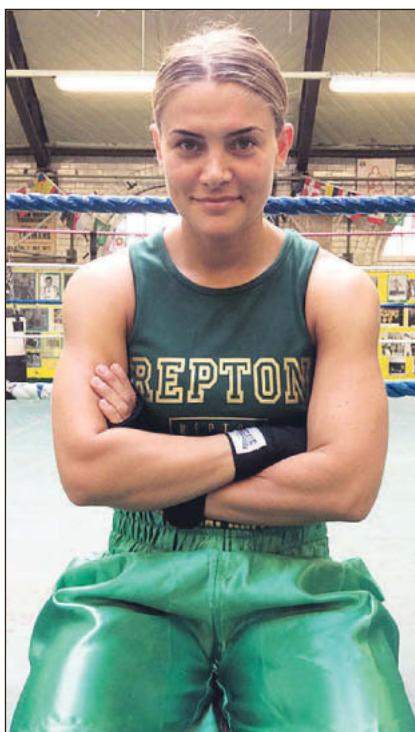

Paksi (Class A 75k) and Katerina (Class B 75k) had the easiest tasks in the semi-finals at Watford Leisure Centre, being granted walkovers into the final.

Moore (Class B 57kg) boxed well to take the decision from Chloe-Jane Stansfield (Army) and Dujon, not to be outdone, shone against Orsolya Kiraly (London Military).

REPTON Boxing Club travelled to Ireland for their annual team match against a select side and ended up clinching a narrow 7-6 win.

On a tough night, Bill Oliphant was the only boxer to win inside the distance. He beat Adam Kemmy in two rounds, proving to be far too strong for his rival.

Perhaps the best fight of the night was the clash between Shiloh Defreitas and Sean Kavanagh, with Repton's Defreitas getting the votes of all three judges.

The other winners were: Miley Chalk against Oison Treacy, George Ellis against Jake Ratple, Charlie Scott against Jack Marley, Muhammad Khan beating Sean Cribbin and David Tierney beating Liam Murphy.

The beaten Repton boxers were Oliver Jackson against David O'Brien, Mark

Baker against Mike Joyce, Kyle Quinn against Johnny Connors, Levi Deighton at the hands of Ross Tynan, Joseph Inman against Dylan Doyle and Mike Chalk against Ken Doyle.

There were also supporting skills contests featuring Charlie Smith, Alfie Gaskin, Ken Smith, Nathan Harris, John Hedges and Nelson Smith.

Medal-winning is a family affair

Bulldog Taekwondo display their impressive array of medals

Taekwondo

IT was something of a family affair for three members of the Bulldog Taekwondo Club at the Rose Cup at Newham Leisure Centre.

And seven-year-old Lucinda Riley showed mum and dad just how it's done. Lucinda, a yellow belt and a pupil at Bonner School, Bethnal Green, won two gold medals at the event.

Mum Alecia Hourigan, who works at Bonner School, then picked up a silver medal in her event as did dad Michael in his.

Overall the club took nine medals. The medallists were: Agnieszka Abdulwahab (gold); Parris Ikuomola, 17-year-old black belt (silver); Jayden Coborne, 12, (silver); Sarah Makumbi (silver); Bedr Abdulwahab, 11 (bronze).

Bulldog Taekwondo train at Arch 5, Gales Gardens, Bethnal Green, and Whitechapel Sports Centre, Durward Street.

Paris Ikuomola won a silver medal in the junior team patterns at the European championships and club-mate Jennifer Pena won silver in the senior team sparring and bronze in the senior team patterns. www.bulldogtkd.com

Veras Karate Academy enjoyed more success

Medal haul

VERAS Karate Academy competed in the Central England International championships and finished fourth out of 41 clubs in the medals table.

The 16 squad members from Veras Clubs in Tower Hamlets, Islington and Hackney clubs returned home with three gold, five silver and seven bronze medals.

Luca Veras, eight, and, Lucienne Brown, 11, both won fighting golds while Ben Pomeroy, 15, won his kumite.

Sensei Raphael Veras said: "I was proud to see all the squad perform well at one of most difficult tournaments in the country and would like to thank all the parents for their support."

The squad consisted of teams from six years old to seniors.

Other medallists: Isaac Gibson, seven, Liam Veras, ten, Seyhan Cinar, 11, Chloe Casimir, 13, Luke Kavanagh, 13, Luca Veras, Daniel Gardner, nine, and Jack Gentili, eight, took silver in the team kata

9-years and under, while Liam, Luke and Seyhan picked up a bronze in the 10-15 years kata.

Alexander Ogunsalu, six, Ismail Cinar, 8, Dylan Gibson, 6, Robert Stanev, nine, and Andras Tomas also competed.

UEL round-up

Run continues

IT'S been a busy week for the University of East London with teams competing in volleyball, netball and basketball.

Pick of the week was the UEL netball team who defeated University of Essex 46-13 for their 17th consecutive victory. The team are unbeaten since October 2015.

The UEL women's basketball squad bounced back after losing the previous week to beat Imperial College London 52-44.

Finally, the men's volleyball enjoyed a 3-1 win over City University London in their first match of the new season.

UEL won the first two sets 25-22 and 25-21, before UCL gave themselves a fighting chance by taking the third 27-26. But UEL stepped up a gear to wrap up the fourth and final set 25-12.

Jason Leonard with youngsters at the festival

JASON Leonard, rugby World Cup winner and England's most capped player, visited Queen Mary Rugby Football Club's Tower Hamlets Schools tag tournament, set up to encourage school kids across the borough to play the sport. Leonard, now president of the Rugby Football Union, gave his support to the initiative which brought together ten schools and more than 100 children at East London Rugby Club in West Ham.

Paddy Vasey, president of QMRFC, added: "Tower Hamlets is one of the boroughs with the least contact with rugby and I thought, having been brought up with rugby, that many kids could benefit from the opportunity to give it a go. "The programme has been a success while still challenging because we had to deal with large classes and huge mixtures of ability. I think the main aim – to get kids enjoying rugby – has been achieved."

Wapping keep unbeaten run

BY PETER FAULKNER

WAPPING Hockey Club's elite ladies continued their unbeaten run with a 1-1 draw at Colchester.

They failed to start in their usual high-speed fashion as the Colchester pitch was slower than the Olympic turf at their Lee Valley home.

Wapping's Player of the Match, goalkeeper Karen Perkins, had a strong game, making some crucial saves and communicating well with the back four.

Wapping started to up their game, particularly in last five minutes of the first half, and a pass down the right was eventually delivered back to the top of the D, where captain Lucy Todd smashed the ball against the backboard.

However, Colchester managed to break through the Wapping defence in the second-half and converted a strong strike in the D to level the match.

■ WAPPING Men's 3s faced Crostyx 1s at Lee Valley and their magnificent 5-1 victory was the perfect present for captain Greg

Wapping 3s' Jason Black on the attack

Edmunds, stepping down after two years. And just to make it a special day he was named man-of-the-match.

A sluggish start from Wapping and some early pressure from Crostyx resulted in two short corners for the visitors within the first few minutes.

And the early pressure paid off when a ricocheted shot fell to a Crostyx forward who slotted it into the far corner.

Wapping then won numerous short corners. Joe Carpenter's attempted assist to Steven Turner was thwarted by a deflection on the line by the excellent Hamish Forbes, putting the score even at 1-1. Michael Bolle and Caspar Paulus soon followed by scoring from two short corners respectively. Paulus then got his second goal of the match to make the points safe.

But Wapping weren't content with four, and as the game opened up, Alex White added the fifth after getting the better of a one-on-one with the Crostyx keeper.

Double for East London

Hockey

East London ladies 1st...3

City of Peterborough 3rd...1

IT was a case of double delight for East London Hockey Club when the ladies pulled off a shock win over league leaders Ashford and the men's side toppled City of Peterborough – the team above them.

The ladies were hoping to improve on their eighth place, but knew it would be a tough ask against the table toppers.

Emily Menzies was brought on and her first touch of the ball was from a short corner, which Lucy Foxall put away from the rebound to give East London the lead.

Returning the favour minutes later, Foxall passed to Menzies to score. East London then conceded a goal before the break.

After the interval East captain Anastasia Nicholl hit home an unstoppable straight strike and a composed and diligent defence – including from Ceylan Gomez, who was concussed by the end – kept out Ashford until the final whistle for a 3-1 victory.

East London's stand-out players were Amy Rogers and keeper Laura Wilkins, who saved a penalty stroke.

East London men 1st...2

City of Peterborough 3rd...1

In the morning City of Peterborough were third in the table, ahead of East London on goal difference, but quality was rarely on display during their meeting at Lee Valley.

East London took the lead early after Joe Green's through ball found Mitchel Nicholson, who fired a reverse stick shot past the keeper.

In the second half a defensive lapse allowed Peterborough to equalise, but after a scrappy ten minutes man of the match Adam Lord put away the winner.

Soccer round-up

Late winner

East Londoners...3
FC Hamlets...2

FC Hamlets have a week's respite from the Essex Olympian League, giving them some much needed time to work on their early season problems.

They are now second from bottom in the league and need a confidence boosting win.

They suffered an early setback when the East Londoners' striker played the ball across the box for another player to tap in.

Ten minutes later Ashley King smashed the equaliser into the bottom corner from just outside the box.

Almost immediately a poor Hamlets clearance found two unmarked Londoners players and one squeezed it home.

Five minutes into the second half, substitute John Gilroy put Hamlets back on terms but, following several chances to take the lead, Hamlets conceded the decisive goal from a corner with two minutes to go.

Tower Hamlets...3
Wadham Lodge...5

TOWER Hamlets, after ending their mini-slump the previous weekend, were brought crashing back down to earth in the Essex Senior League Challenge Cup in midweek.

They faced Wadham Lodge at Mile End Stadium and it turned into a goal feast with Hamlets losing 5-3.

Sunday Wasiu got two goals for the hosts and Jide Alaga also notched.

Tunde sees red

Takeley...1
Sporting Bengal...1

SPORTING Bengal were always going to be up against it after Tunde Adewunmi got his marching orders, just ten minutes into the game.

But the visitors did well to cope with the numerical disadvantage and Takeley were perhaps happy at the end to gain a point at Station Road.

Sporting went a goal down soon after Tunde's dismissal, but fought back with a display of resolve and team spirit that pleased manager Anwar Uddin.

NEWS FROM TOWER HAMLETS COUNCIL AND YOUR COMMUNITY

East End trio bid for glory

BY PETER FAULKNER

THIS week the east London spotlight falls on three women – Muay Thai champion Ruqsana Begum, para-rower Rose Linden, and judoka Olivia Piechota.

Begum, who trains at the KO gym in Bethnal Green, gets a second shot at the world title at Hackney's Round Chapel venue this coming Saturday.

The reigning British champion faces Sweden's Josefina Lindgren Knutsson for the atomweight crown.

This is the second chance of world glory for the former Stewart Headlam School pupil. In March she lost to Ludivine Lasnier of France at Earls Court.

Visually impaired rower Rose Linden stormed to gold in the British rowing senior championships in Nottingham, in her first appearance for the University of East London.

Linden came fourth behind three male rowers over 2km and grabbed top spot in her ITA category (for athletes who have the use of their legs, trunk and arms).

"This is one of the bigger successes in my career," said Rose. "It felt great being able to lay down a marker at the beginning of such an important season."

Linden says she chose UEL to study for a master's degree in psychology because of the outstanding rowing facilities in Docklands. Now she hopes this golden moment will be the springboard to a place in the Great Britain mixed fours team at the Rio Olympics next year.

The final accolade goes to 17-year-old member of Tower Hamlets Judo Club Olivia Piechota, who has set her sights on an early Christmas present – the British title, which she bids for next month.

She has been inspired by her display at the Warsaw Judo Open Polish Cup in Poland.

The British number one won this event last year and was confident of striking gold again.

But this year Olivia's title bid became tougher because she was moving into the under-21 junior age category where she was challenged by older competitors. Her weight division also increased to under-48kg.

Piechota's excellent throwing techniques and grappling skills secured her place in the final.

Her opponent, Hungarian Andrea Karman, looked strong throughout. As match time drew to an end there was still no winner and the contest went into golden score phase.

This is where Karman looked the busier, resulting in a penalty score against Piechota, which ended the contest.

Piechota finished with the silver medal and proved she will again be a title chaser again this season.

Win tickets to award-winning play

READER OFFER

EAST END LIFE is offering you the chance to win four tickets for you and your family to see The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time, the critically acclaimed National Theatre production that brings Mark Haddon's best-selling novel to thrilling life on stage.

Fifteen-year-old Christopher stands beside Mrs Shears' dead dog, Wellington. It has been speared with a garden fork, it is seven minutes after midnight and Christopher is under suspicion.

He records each fact in the book he is writing to solve the mystery of who murdered Wellington.

Christopher has an extraordinary brain, exceptional at maths while ill-equipped to interpret everyday life. He has never ventured alone beyond the end of his road, he detests being touched and distrusts strangers.

But his detective work, forbidden by his father, takes him on a frightening journey that upturns his world.

Adapted by two-time Olivier Award-winning playwright Simon Stephens and directed by Olivier and Tony Award®-winning director Marianne Elliott, The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time is currently one of the hottest tickets in the West End – the winner of seven Olivier awards, including Best New Play, and five Tony Awards®.

These sought-after tickets are valid for selected performances at the Gielgud Theatre this autumn.

To find out more about the show and to book, visit www.CuriousOnStage.com

For a chance of winning, answer the following question:

Eating out, eating in China shop bull shows diners a sensitive side

BY GORDON BLUE

A RESTAURANT and bar with such an emotive name – Bull In A China Shop – is just begging for a review, if only to ensure this isn't a summary of the collective attitudes of the chef, interior designer and bartender behind the project!

In fact, our whole experience is enveloped in care, from the service to the carefully planned décor, everything is sensitively done, resulting in a satisfying and enjoyable evening out.

A deft touch and a nod to quality are behind all aspects of this exciting new find, with not a bull in sight.

The Silver Fox kicks things off with a generous fishcake, crisped with breadcrumbs and served atop dressed leaves. He nods in agreement with his taste buds and is smug with his choice.

I am delighted with my three steamed scallops, served on the shell and accented with chilli and soy.

Bull In A China Shop will not disappoint your taste buds

Things are looking good and we become giddy with the idea of more to come.

The Silver Fox has an excellent halloumi burger, panko-breadcrumbs with generous salad and an additional side of fries.

My okra and lentil stew is a magnificent dish: warming and nurturing against the blustering winds outside, with generous cloves of roasted garlic throughout and a deeply flavoured sauce. This is one of the best vegetarian dishes I've had for some time and I'd come back for it alone.

The wine list is good and there's an extensive choice of cocktails, not to mention a specialist rare and premium whiskies list from Japan and Scotland (there are more than 30). Teamed with the immunity-boosting powers of the garlic, this place could be my alternative flu jab of choice.

Two ate starters and mains, teamed with some delicious Sauvignon wines for £65, including service and water.

They serve throughout the day so I'm keen to see what the breakfast experience is like too, as well as a lazy lunchtime experience.
